SEPTEMBER 16, 1805.

On Monday, anchored in the roads the French Privateer Henrietta, of 20 guns; Prize to His Majesty's ship Terpsichore, Captain Bathurst.

Captain Bathurst, on the 20th ultimo, and whilst cruising off the Port of St. Dennys, at the Isle of Bourbon, saw the Henrietta at an anchor, close in with the land and protected by two formidable Batteries,—her advantageous situation, could not, however, protect her: a spirited and gallant attack was immediately made by His Majesty's ship, and within half an hour the French Colours were struck;—the major part of the Henrietta's crew having thrown themselves overboard, and swam on shore.

The Henrietta kept up a brisk and well directed fire, for some time:—a heavy fire from the Batteries also continued till the Terpsichore and her Prize had gained an offing, and were out of the range of their shot.

The Terpsichore, had, we learn, four Men Killed, and four Wounded,—the Ene my's loss, we have not ascertained.

The Henrietta arrived from Frace about ten months ago:—she is a handsome ship, and sails remarkably well. She was on the point of sailing for India when Captured.

On Monday arrived the ship Cornwallis, Captain Reid, from Bombay, left the 2d instant.—Passengers: Lieut. Gourton, Ensign M'Quarry, aud Doctor Anderson.

On Tuesday arrived the Hon'ble Company's ship Metcalfe, Captain Isaacke, from Bombay.—Passengers: Capt. Sheen, of the Bombay Establishment.

On Sunday last, Major General Wemyess arrived at the Presidency, under the Salute due to his rank.
