If a Kiowa dies in a lodge it is, from sickness, he is buried in a good deep grave in the ground with his head to the west—women and children the same way—- if a man is killed in battle what is all right—everybody wants to attain a chief's road—every man has a die road appointed for him long ago some will die of sickness some will get killed we do not know how it will be but it is all right to be killed in battle it is not bad—Cheyennes, Apaches have the same burial customs we have. The Cheyenne, Apache bury alive but different from the Kiowa they put their dead bodies up in trees—The Caddo bury in a small crib in a log house with a flat roof. The Whetito's bury in a small house made of logs this shape D
