Guarding
~~Hoeding~~ the buffalo

When the Sioux were all in one large village they ~~Hoed~~ guarded the buffalo. it then was not done - were worried go off secretly before sunrise ~~light~~ in different directions and drive the buffalo far away from the village and have everybody else they owned be exhausted looking for meat - the soldiers guard the buffalo. if they see anybody going to hunt buffalo on the wrong day they stop him - then ~~to~~ the night time they all go out - the soldiers ~~in front~~ called along the front - holding the people back, restraining their impatience until all are ready and when the principal man gives the signal they charge the buffalo - everybody kills buffalo that near and gets enough to eat - they cut up meat enough to last for a twelve days or more by that time the buffalo have recovered from their fright and are back again near the village then they do it again

& they use guns & pistols it frightens the buffalo that hears it for a long distance around ~~that hears it~~ and they leave that section - All the old men advised to use bows & arrows and spears only as that way the buffalo would be kept around camps in two days small camps did not guard the buffalo When they were guarding the buffalo the soldiers would whip anybody who went out to shoot deer or anything else - the buffalo when scared will usually run about 3 miles - then never for four miles - then he calms down & eats grass - the elk & big bear do not get tired - no tired no stop they are skinny they keep going - the bear goes over mountains after mountains before he stops"=
