20,000 ALLIES MARCHING AGAINST THE TURK.

Maurus, clad chiefly in grins, waiting to perform a war-dance when inspected by Sir Ian Hamilton before leaving for an "unknown destination."

At last the Allies are coming to grips with the Turks by land as well as by sea. General Sir Ian Hamilton is in command of the combined expeditionary force despatched to the Dardanelles, and a powerful French army is already encamped at San Stefano, a place of historic memories in the war-stained story of the Balkans. Over 20,000 troops, says the German official report, have been landed near Fawa, in Thrace, and troops and transports are arriving daily from Alexandria. Germany awaits the new blow and the new force with dread.

THE AMAZING MINISTRY.

Mr. Lloyd George’s latest speech adds a new chapter to the record of our amazing Ministry. The Government apologists are finding it more difficult than ever to square present with past utterances.

I sometimes wonder if politicians ever remember the words spoken by himself during the past few months. It is desirable that he should do so, but I fear there are some discrepancies, if not, better, avoid them.

Perhaps with a sly touch of humor, Mr. Asquith planned his Newcastle speech to cut the color of his Chancellor. So adroitly was it done that for a very funny pretext Mr. Lloyd George on the following night made an extraordinary speech on an armistice which surpassed the Asquithian optimism, but left the Lloyd George of a month ago a convicted alarmist.

The Government explain the development by seeking to prove that an immense improvement has taken place in the interior of the Government. These lies are given figures which help to bolster up this theory.

If this explanation be true, why did the Government not explain the armistice to parties keep up the agitation until the last moment? If everything is going on so swimmingly now, why not do so a month ago?

But any business man knows that in the interval of less than a month between Mr. Lloyd George’s optimistic speech and the armistice, a very large number of businesses would have been affected in the munition output to justify the Ministerial false face.

The plain fact is, either the Chancellor must have been grossly misinformed a month ago or grossly misinformed now, which is it?

Mr. Lloyd George’s optimistic speeches and false armistice cannot be justified in the munition output to justify the Ministerial false face.

We are approaching a period of critical fighting and great activity. Can the Chancellor maintain the rate of increase which he has given so far between January and March be adequate to meet the demand? There was official anxiety in March because the optimism, which was based on optimism in April, when larger forces and greater demands have to be provided for.

The situation is not at all reassuring. By their quick changes of attitude the members of the Ministry puzzle the public.

The next stage will probably be prefabricated factories. There will be no miracles being worked in this war. The number of men and the amount of munitions depend on hard facts. We have seen how many men and factories that have been prepared.

From month to month the increase in outlay in this war, it is true, is a matter of mathematical lines. The rate of increase may be appreciable as more men and more machinery come into service. But it takes more than a month or two developments to produce their full effect.

Thus it is quite correct that we have not yet heard enough about the armistice. It was equally so in January, February, and March, when the expansion was going on. If the Chancellor could explain to other members of the Ministry create alarm in past months? The March output upon which his optimism is based was brought about by the factory developments made earlier in the year.

ECHOES OF TOWN AND ROUNDABOUT.

Home of The Blizzards.

The Scott Film at the Philharmonic Hall yesterday about 6.30 a.m. was told by someone intimately connected, with a clear profit of 450,000 in the film. The total is estimated to be something of the type, “The Home of the Blizzards,” a record of which is now being shown at the Alhambra.

Humorous Penguins.

I should like for many reasons, to prophesy a life for this film. “It is the last quite interesting. Yesterday afternoon I flew into the Alhambra for an hour. The seats are comfort, you can smoke, and the incrustation. Mr. Willis, chairs pleasantly and cuddlingly in the habits of that sprightly evening, the policy in normal a shutter plays Chopin. I can recommend the Alhambra after lunch for rest and relaxation.

Commissions By Luck?

To get a commission just a question of luck? I think it must be. Three friends of mine, who have been appointed by the War Office, have applied for commissions eight days only yesterday. He is not yet twenty. He knows the Commission is no guarantee for anything and little about anything else.

Burn—a Town of Contrasts.

Burn, of which we hear so much just now, and which has just started an “English” newspaper, is in the words of a friend who has been there, “a rotten hole for Europeans” and for the operatives of the town, “a rotten hole for Europeans” and for the operatives of the town.

Kitchener’s Relaxation.

Major Beard, on the move in St. James’s Park is growing rapidly and exciting not a little interest among the public. It is true that Mr. Kitchener has a habit of coming here to have a look.” The wooden hats he is interested in are part of the British Legion’s collection, and will be housed in the Army Office, and will house the Army Office.

An Episcopal D.S.O.

The Right Rev. Dr. W. G. Ingham, the Roman Catholic Bishop of Nottingham, who is about to retire, is the only episcopal D.S.O. we have. He has been in the Front Line for a long time, and in Egypt his name was known wherever the British soldiers were to be found. Two other R.C. priests who have been awarded the D.S.O. are Father Le Grice. All have retired from the service they adored so nobly.

Flying Visit.

Major J. W. Boden, M.P., has almost succeeded in being in the air, and he has returned from the front on a Sunday, made a speech in the House of Commons on Wednesday, and is now off again on another flying visit. When the raid is engaged in a Member of Parliament, he has had time to take a great interest in flying, and he has been a busy man. In diplomatic service he has always been a busy man, and to his work.

Mr. Martine, Vancouver.

A correspondent asks: “What about Mr. Joseph Martin, M.P., the Radical Member for Vancouver, who has been away for a number of years? Has he any chance for Vancouver, announcing his intention to remain in Canada! He still draws his salary of $8,000 a year, and in 1895 engaged in a life-and-death struggle the money unjustly paid him by his party. He is now more profusely paid in employing some more Tommies for active service.

Viscountess And War Babies.

No woman has had a year so far more solemnly and more splendidly than Viscountess Muriel Vincenton’s family. For months past she has been devoting a great deal of her time to the work of Édouard de La Vauguyon Emergency Concerts. Last night the concert held at the War Office was more even more splendid. With portraits of the Viscountess, Lady Helmsley attended a meeting summoned by the Women’s Imperial Health Association, of which she is president, and presided over a committee of a representative women to deal with this burning question, Mr. Ronald McNeill has raised.

I can sympathize.

The Office of Duties.

The most magnificent shrubbery I know is a list of my friends which has been picked out to be the Colonel’s ABC. He had to call a taxi for the Big Man yesterday, and is very near about it.

Real Old Furniture And Carpets.

The race that quite a beautiful group of real old furniture, real “antique” furniture, is used in “Quinquini” reminds me of an imitation real “antique” furniture, which is sold for use in “The Angel’s Cry,” produced at the Strand last night. Fred Terry, in order to add to “The Angel’s Cry,” produced at the Strand last night. Fred Terry, to add to the effect of the romantic and risqué scenes of the book of the same name, had a little to do with the London note book of the same name, had a little to do with the London note book of the same name.

Insomnia Cure.

I have just been reading the American newspapers’ accounts of the defeat of Jack Johnson, and was struck by the fact that he had been in a bloody duel, and that the fight was Kilburn’s “confidence wallop”. I am going to study the business of失眠, as I have got a few words about the business of失眠, as I have got a few words about the business of失眠, as I have got a few words about the business of失眠, as I have got a few words about the business of失眠.

Academician—And Others.

The academician is the art world, for there is a meeting of the Royal Academy for the purpose of electing a new Academician. This is the portrait of Sir Edward Poynter, the President. It is rather the fashion among the younger and more revolutionary artists, the talkative, the worldling, the critic, the futurist, the desirous of presenting the future, the “to-day” artist, the artist, the “to-day” artist, the artist.

I do not think this will affect his aesthetic reputation in the least. He is the apostle of the new art, and a few words as are not recognised when extreme youth passes away.

Palace and Grill Room.

Sir Edward Poynter, the President, has done a great deal for British Art, not only academically in the way of writing and treating on art subjects but as Vice-President at large 7971, but in his actual output. “Atlantic’s Race” and “A Visit to the Zoo” were two of his best known pictures. He has also done a lot of work in connection with the monarchy at Windsor Palace, and has decorated a grillroom.

MR. CROSBY.
FIGHT STILL IN PROGRESS.

Tommy Cheerful And Confident

And Waiting To "Get On." The Germans are still desperately fighting for the recapture of Hill 60, the low ridge which overlooks the sea, and American and British plans of attack between Ypres and Lillic. Up to the present the British hold on the hill has not been seriously troubled, but many Germans have lost 4,000 men in attacking it. The British "Eye-witness" now gives the first details of the German capture of the hill.

On Saturday evening an attack was made by us on the enemy's trenches on Hill 60—a commanding point which lies on the north side of the Ypres-Comines railway, about two and a half miles to the east of Ypres.

This spot has frequently been the scene of action, the last occasion being the heavy fighting which occurred at the time two months ago when the German attack on Hill 60 was repulsed and the hill held throughout by the enemy's hands.

FIELD THROUGH THE NIGHT.

Our effort to gain the peak began at 7 p.m. on Sunday, and after a long night's work the Germans under the German gun position, blew up a length of trench that ran from the northern end of the hill to the foot of the town. This was our objective, that we might be able to hold ground on the hill if we were driven off.

By 9 a.m. on Monday morning the Germans had their real reply with a determined attack on our left flank. The British and German forces were thrown into a counter-attack; the Germans, however, immediately fell back in confusion and a second counter-attack was made.

THE AGNES WON.

Women's Race To Provide Red Cross Ambulances.

The scheme inaugurated by Lady Birkenshaw to create a fleet of "named" Red Cross ambulances for service at the front, each ambulance bearing the Christian name of the woman who sponsored it, is now completed.

Names of funds were opened in different names, and nine of these successfully arranged the amount required for the purchase of an ambulance. The "Agnes fund" did best of all, with £525. The "Maguire" fund came next, and the "Annie" fund did third. The total was £1,000, and the sub-

PANIC IN A BURNING MILL.

Cotton Operatives Hurt In Saving Fainting Women.

A fire which broke out in a cotton mill owned by the Alpha Spinning Company at Boston, destroyed a painting among some of the women workers.

The fire started about 10 a.m. on Monday, when people, mostly women, were employed. They rushed throughout the building in a panic, and several faint.

Operatives rescued several others from smoke and, although the flames were rapidly halting, they had the fire escape or carried those who had been injured.

The woman was reportedly seriously injured, but she did not notice the fire escape and did not go down the fire escape or carried those who had been injured. RECRUITING GOING STRONG.

The meetings held by the Parliamentary Recruiting Committee have been attended by the expected number of applicants. The recruiting campaign which it is conducting throughout the country is a success. The "boom" in recruiting followed immediately after the meeting of the committee, and the recruits are now being trained for the early days of the war.

ALLIES' DRAMATIC MOVES FORWARD IN THE DARDANELLES.

BRITISH AND FRENCH TROOPS LAND IN TURKEY

Sir Ian Hamilton In Command Of Expeditionary Force.

EXPECTED RUSSIAN MOVEMENT.

German Report Of Transports Arriving Daily From Egypt.

The decisive and probably final stage of the attack on the Dardanelles has begun with the landing of a British and French expeditionary force in Turkey.

German official news of yesterday states that 20,000 British and French troops have landed near Enos, on the Aegean, which is the point from which a line to Mudros, on the Black Sea, was to have formed the Bulgarian frontier after the first Balkan War.

General Sir H. Gough is in charge of the military operations, in supreme command of the troops of both Allies, under the name of the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force.

General D'amade is in command of the French troops under Sir Ian Hamilton.

No authoritative information can be given

Nevertheless it is expected that the attack will be much more serious than the first.

The main question is whether the Balkan states, especially Greece, will join the Allies. If not any attack on Constantinople is regarded as certain to fail. German diplomatic circles rely absolutely upon the fall of this city as the preliminary to the departure of the Boer armies from the Balkan Peninsula. Press reports.

TURKS ARE NOT WORRYING.

Turkish Official News.

Two enemy troops are reported to have destroyed a fort at Mudros on Souda Bay, and one found stationed upon our batteries in the Dardanelles at Longchamp

The batteries did not think it necessary to reply to the aggression.

GENERAL SIR IAN HAMILTON.

General Sir Ian Hamilton, who is 56, has a brilliant military record exceeding over 42 years.

His first experience of active service was in the Afghan campaign of 1878-79, when he was twice mentioned in dispatches. In the Boer War, three years later, he was present in the campaign, and was also mentioned in dispatches.

Afterwards he served in the Nile and Burma Expeditions, and displayed great personal bravery in each of these campaigns, until he was made a brigadier general in the Egyptian Army.

In the South African War he was a brigadier general in command of the British forces in the Dardanelles, and he afterwards became a distinguished part in the defence of Ladysmith and at Mafeking.

The year before the war his father, Sir Robert Hamilton, was appointed to the position of Adjutant General of the Army, and he was appointed to the position of Adjutant General of the Army, and was in the Mediterranean and in the Middle East.

GENERAL D'AMADE.

Sir Ian Hamilton has an intimate knowledge of General D'amade, whose experience during the French campaign of 1915 is invaluable.

The French commander's name was made more familiar to the British public when he was ennobled in the Order of the British Empire in 1916.

The D'Amade is to be a prominent figure in the future, and he is likely to be a successful leader.

Apart from this not much is expected, and the situation will be very disappointing.

WAR MUNITIONS MUDDLE.

Mr. Long Says Admiralty and War Office Are In Competition.

Mr. Balfour, Under-Secretary of State for War, in the House of Commons yesterday, explained that the British Government and Admiralty had been in competition with the War Office with regard to the supply of munitions of war.

Mr. Balfour explained that the Admiralty had been most successful, and that the War Office had been almost completely defeated.

Mr. Balfour also explained that the Admiralty had been most successful in the supply of munitions of war, and that the War Office had been almost completely defeated.

FAR EASTERN NEWS.

NEW DRINK LAWS WILL BE KNOWN NEXT WEEK.

Mr. Aqith's Announcement In The House Of Commons.

Mr. Lloyd George Overruled.

The Prime Minister stated in the House of Commons that on Wednesday or Thursday next the Chancellor of the Exchequer will bring forward proposals dealing with the limitation of the facilities for drinking.

The law would probably be taken the week after next.

The announcement made by the Prime Minister, as a result of the careful correspondence, the discussion of the possible consequences of the law, and the careful consideration of the demand for the law, the Government will announce the results of the law at the end of the month.

The Government has decided that the Chancellor would be in charge of the law, and that he would be the only person to explain it.

The brewing trade was consulted, but for the most part they have the same information concerning the reappearance of the law.

The law would not be brought forward at the end of the month, but the Government will announce the results of the law at the end of the month.

ARE YOU RUPTURED?
If so, I will Send You this Wonderful Appliance FREE!!

My Marvellous Air-Pressure Remedy has Brought Relief to Thousands.

I, once a chronic sufferer from Rupture, have made a wonderful discovery. It is a discovery that brought me health, comfort and freedom, after experiencing cruel and dragging pain. The appliance has given me rest and relief at all.

Overcome by my rapid recovery, I have decided to make the virtues of my health recovery known to hundreds of sufferers who still suffer from this painful weakening, and dangerous complaint.

SPECIAL OFFER TO "DAILY SKETCH" READERS.
I will send to every sufferer who wishes to order the appliance by return of post, enclosed in the envelope below, enquiring just 6d. in stamps to cover packing and postage.

1. The special "Mecca" appliance for the relief and cure of Rupture—this appliance, which, owing to the marvellous benefits secured by those who use it, is rapidly supplanting all others.

This I will send to any address in plain sealed wrapper, free on approval, so that the sufferer can examine the appliance for himself before deciding to purchase it. I had worn an ordinary truss for many years without securing any benefit. Indeed, my Rupture grew gradually worse. It was then that I discovered the principle embodied in the "Mecca" appliance; the principle by which the elastic, continuous, yet elastic pressures of the air exerted a beneficial effect in relieving and curing the Rupture, thus providing a constant and efficient support.

PERFECT SUPPORT WITHOUT RESTRAINT.
Directly you begin to wear it you feel the comfort and support it gives; and there are no constraining adjustments as with the old-fashioned style. Never annoy your husband again. To the men of the house, it is the most effective support you will ever have.

You will find in the article "For Those Who Suffer" a most interesting story of a woman whose life was saved by this appliance. It is a wonderful story of the way in which the appliance was used to save a life. It is a story of hope and recovery. You will find it fascinating reading.

To MR. D. M. COOPER, "MECCA" RUPTURE-LOCK CO., 112, HOLBORN HALL, LONDON, W.C.
The complete appliance will then be sent you by return, on approval, Free.

Please send me your "Mecca" Rupture-Lock on approval free. My vowel measurement is...

I enclose 6d. for postage and packing. If I do not wish to keep the appliance I will send it back by return of post. If, however, I decide to keep it I will either send you 6d. by return and give further weekly installments of 6d. or 6d. in full settlement. (I quite understand that if mine is a case of Rupture there will be no financial charge of 6d. or if double rupture, 20d. extra, which may be paid by easy instalments.)

CROSS, FEVERISH, BILIOUS CHILDREN NEED "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Look, Mother! See if the tongue is coated: this denotes sluggish liver and bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. Box if the tongue is coated; this is a mere sign that his little stomach, liver and bowels need attention at once.

When feverish, pale, feverish, "stuffy" with cold, breath over, when the child has tasted breath and doesn't eat, sleep, or act naturally, or has stomach-ache or diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleanser should be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the waste matter, sour bite and fermenting food clotted in the bowels pass out of the system, and you have a healthy and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to afford a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your chemist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." It is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company," Contra Costa, and distributed at all stores. A bottle lasts for 2 months. A bottle lasts for 2 months.

CONFERENCE WHICH DISCUSSED THE FUTURE OF THE WAR BABIES.

The future of the war babies was discussed yesterday at a conference at Hanover Square which was attended by Society women and women prominent in the labour world. The meeting was private.

Lady Jellinek was present.

POLICE RAID IN MAYFAIR.

Fashionably Dressed Women In Gaming Case.

Fashionably dressed women were given seats in front of the dock at Marlborough-street Police Court yesterday, when, together with others, appeared on charges connected with a police raid made upon a large house in Clifford-street, Belsize-street, Mayfair.

Their names, together with their descriptions, were as follows—Miss Gibson, 40, independent; John Stewart (50), seaman; Charles Storck, 50, waiter, an Italian subject. These were charged with conducting the premises as a gaming house, while Herbert Kendall, 50, independent; Henry Joss, 50, company promoter; and a Russian, Charles Iyer (40), independent, an American subject; David Thomas, independent; Arthur Carter (50), independent; Mrs. Mobile Dawson, 45, and Mrs. Amy Pluthimmons (30) were charged with frequenting the place.

Mr. Musceli informed the magistrate that defendants were arrested at 1 a.m. that morning at a flat in the occupation of Gibson, who was the weekly tenant, paying £4 per week. The premises were kept solely as a gaming establishment.

CHEMIX DE PER GOING ON.

Upon entering, the officers found chemin de fer in full progress, and all the paraphernalia connected with the game—the dummy cards, counters representing money—would be produced in court. A very considerable sum of money was found on Gibson, who took upon himself the responsibility as owner of the flat, and although Stewart, who was the occupier, as owner of the nature of the establishment, continued Mr. Musceli, the police, before you a large number of invitation cards which were to be sent out giving the nights on which the game was carried on, and about 160 envelopes addressed to individuals in London, including officers of the Navy and Army.

The Magistrate, of what rank—Mr. Musceli, Captains, lieutenants, majors, and so on. Superintendent Sunderland explained that among other things there was a card box containing 36 counters, with a face value of £72 15s. The counters ranged from 6d. to 25s. On the table he found what was known in the game as a "chow," and he had possession from the others who were playing of 22 counters of a total value of 40s. He also found a 1s. note.

He found upon Gibson £40 in notes, £30 in Treasury notes and one cheque, and on Stewart, £20 in notes. For 2s. 6d. and 2s. 3d. and one note, and 2s. 3d. and 2s. 6d. and one note, Stewart said Gibson had paid him about 2s. a week for acting as employer.

Mr. Mead returned all the defendants and fixed Gibson's bail at £40 and Stewart's at £40. The two were remanded on their own recognisances for £40 each.

WHAT GEORGE SMITH SAW TO BRIEZE'S FATHER.

His Indigation When Money Was Refused.

"MOTHER WAS A BUS-_HORSE."

Witness's Singular Find in Bath After the Death.

The London correspondent of The Globe in Bath last week received from one of the most distinguished citizens of that city a story of a truly remarkable discovery. It was made by a man named Smith, who is well known in the town as a public-spirited citizen and a man of means. The story is as follows:

Smith, who is a widower with two children, was on his way to the bank to withdraw some money when he noticed a strange look on the face of a man who was standing outside the door. The man was dressed in the best clothes and was carrying a large bag. Smith was somewhat startled by the man's appearance and decided to follow him. He did so and soon found himself in a small room where the man was depositing his money in a safe. Smith was amazed to find that the man was a乞丐 who was living in a room in the basement of the bank. The man had been depositing his money in the safe for the past three years and had never been caught. Smith was moved by the story and decided to do something to help the man. He went to the bank and withdrew all the money that the man had in the safe. He then took the money to the man's room and gave it to him. The man was overjoyed and thanked Smith for his kindness.

The man's name is John Smith and he is now living in a small cottage in the country. He is very grateful to Smith for his kindness and has been very kind to him ever since.

WHAT WAS FOUND IN THE BATH.

Witnesses' Stories of Rings, Whisky, and The Funeral.

Susan Hayes was the first witness, and told how she was found dead on December 21st, 1882, in a small room in the attic of her house. She was the wife of John Hayes, a well-known jeweler in Bath. The police were called and an investigation was made. It was discovered that Susan Hayes had been murdered.

The second witness was Mr. William Smith, who was a friend of Susan Hayes. He said that he had often seen her in the streets of Bath, and that she was always dressed in the best clothes. He said that he had never seen her appear to be unhappy, and that she was always cheerful.

The third witness was Mrs. Mary Jones, who was a neighbor of Susan Hayes. She said that she had often seen Susan Hayes in the streets of Bath, and that she was always dressed in the best clothes. She said that she had never seen her appear to be unhappy, and that she was always cheerful.

The fourth witness was Mr. James Smith, who was a friend of Susan Hayes. He said that he had often seen her in the streets of Bath, and that she was always dressed in the best clothes. He said that he had never seen her appear to be unhappy, and that she was always cheerful.

The fifth witness was Mr. John Smith, who was a friend of Susan Hayes. He said that he had often seen her in the streets of Bath, and that she was always dressed in the best clothes. He said that he had never seen her appear to be unhappy, and that she was always cheerful.

All Cairo had become interested in Muriel. Reporters had invaded her steps, and in fact, when she crossed the street, it was with the security of a celebrity and of a heroine. Muriel was radiant as she went, and she knew she was safe. She was the talk of the town.

She went to see her mother, and she stood before her stammering her relief and pleasantness.

"Chard's at home," she said. "I saw him a little while ago. He's coming up, he says, after dinner."

Erie heard the words. She looked with a sort of fear into the face of the rich street. Richard would soon go riding down that street, which was like a brilliant kaleidoscope painted with Arab, Turkish, French soldiers, cooling Englishmen, and all sorts of beggars passed. A royal carriage flashed by, a blur of colors and gold and white.

The sky was like a transparency, and every shadow was ink black by the side of the white glare of the runway. A label of cries and laughter reached her. Life seemed to pulse and throbbing near forward.

Lacy, the dress, the people, came up.

"Ah, the relief, my dear!" she said with a contented sigh. "And I haven't heard any details yet. I'm so glad you came. I'm quite happy."

"In this, all this world's happiness, you don't understand," she said, and then she, and then marrying, you know.

"He may be married," Erie said, half bitterly.

"Well, if he is, where is she, and why on earth doesn't she come and look for him?" Lacy Kenea said.

"I've no patience with these modern men," Erie said, "and I want to have another life, an independent life."

"You're not alone in that," Lacy Kenea said.

"You're not alone, either," Erie said, "but you don't understand, you don't understand.

"We were born together, we were always together."

"I'm not that, that's all there is."

"Ah, I love you more than life itself. Don't torture me, give me the words straightaway."

"You don't know anything," she had whispered.

"You're my life, you're my blood, you're my heart, you're yours."

"You're my heart," he said, "and someone else's"他 staggered. His hands strayed at his riding whip so that his face was flushed with impatience. "You're my heart."

"You forget that? Answer me!" she said menacely.

"I'm not your answer, and I'm not yours."

"You're not mine, ever," Erie said, "and I believe that you're going to punish me for every single day that I live."

"I'm not yours," he said, "and I believe that I'm going to punish you for every single day that you live.

"That is your opinion of me, then."

"I have no opinion of you, and I have no opinion of life."

"Ah, I love you more than life itself. Don't torture me, give me the words straightaway."

The Rose of St. George.

NOBODY seems to know whether coincidence or plagiarism is responsible, but there is an unusual crop of roses in the dress-world this spring. It seems that the Rose of St. George's Day appropriately hasn't far to look for a symbol. Roses that, roses embossed, roses full-blown and roses in bud are all to be found in the shops. Some are descriptively named, with others charm by their perversity in being green or grey, or made from some surrounding material, such as patent-leather.

A Rose Cup.
The placing of a rose in a vase is a much-considered matter, and there are few new places left on which a blossom may be effectively poised. They have been seen on the shoulder, on the hip at the end of a long bodice, and at the extreme edge of an evening skirt, but a maximum at a recent Paris dress show achieved. A, very attractively impossible by having a small rose attached to the single curl on her forehead.

Bed Roses.
Rosy-colored materials there are plenty. Most sumptuous are the heavy silks upon which roses are worked in beads. Taffetas with silk-embroidered roses take quantity. Rose frocks and rose embroidered gowns there are rose-bodiced and rose frocks. Wedded roses are worked on batiste, lawn and organdies for children with great success. Tiny roses took the place of buttons on the bridesmaids' dresses at a recent wedding.

Rose Petals are being used most artistically by the milliners. Sometimes, with a thread run through the base of each petal, they are made into wreaths; sometimes the crowns of a hat is lined with them.

NEW VICTORIAN LOAN.
Passing Of The Royal Mail Steam Packet Ordinary Dividend.

There will shortly be offered for subscription £2,300,000 of 4 per cent. bonds of the State of Victoria at the price of 100. These bonds will be redeemable in five or ten years, with the option of conversion into stock. We anticipate a big subscription for the issue.

Some Market yields yesterday were not very active, a get-back in American securities having a slightly depressing influence. It is generally expected that the "boom" could continue indefinitely.

Home Railway stocks continued to be quietly absorbed, and General Defended stock was quoted in up to 6 1/2.

Australian Railway stocks improved in a few instances, but Grand Trunk and Mexican Railway stocks were steady.

An unpleasant incident was the passing of the dividend of 4 1/2 per cent. on the Royal Mail Steam Packet Ordinary stock, which is due on Wednesday was dealt in at 69, and yesterday the stock was quoted as high as 70.

Kaffir held firm, although there was no important movement in prices. Copper shares continued to advance.

Bolivian rubber were well supported, and U's Randini were dealt in at 7 1/4, as we predicted.

LIVERPOOL COTTON—Prices closed steadily; American 5 to 6 up; Egyptian 5 up.

When you advertise with the DAILY SKETCH, the PROOF is the PRACTICE.

COUPON for DAILY SKETCH £1,600 IN NEEDLEWORK PRIZES.

The competition closes towards the end of November, not at the end of May, as previously announced. The extension of time has been arranged in response to the appeals of hundreds of readers who wished to compete, but were unable to complete their work in time.

There is no entrance fee with connection with this competition, but all entries must be accompanied by 24 coupons cut out from the Daily Sketch. These coupons will appear in each issue until November 6.

Send For Full Details.
In order to compete readers must send a stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. Gossip, Needlework Competition, Daily Sketch, London, E.C., for full details and an entrance form.

Many letters have been received from competitors who enthusiastically declare that they still intend to give their work towards the cause of the Red Cross. The chances in the conditions by which it becomes possible for work to be returned when the competition is over, is considered to be of interest in completing individual cases of sustenance or necessity.

In has been suggested that only those articles which are offered for sale should be eligible for prizes; but in answer to this suggestion it may be pointed out that those who are gladly offering their work for patriotic reasons will be deterred from doing so by the fact that the competition is an open one and the prizes genuine awards of merit for good work.
